Fifty years of peace marked by dedication

Fifty years from the day when victory over Japan was declared, ending the Second World War, Elk Point commemorated a half century of peace with the dedication of a new cenotaph.

A large crowd was on hand for the ceremony and the parade of Legion members, military, RCMP and service clubs which preceded it. The Cold Lake Pipe Band led the parade and provided some fine music for the marchers.

The new cenotaph, completed just the day before the ceremony and still lacking the life-size figure which will stand on top, was guarded by three Army and one Air Force personnel. Following the singing of O Canada, the Royal Canadian Legion 151 color party placed their flags, flanked by Air Force and Army flagbearers.

A military fighter jet zoomed by overhead, saluting the gathering with two passes.

Legion Branch Chaplain Jim MacLellan, who served eleven years with the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, joked that "it's a memorable day for me - it's the first time the Air Force has been on time." On a more serious note, he harked back to Jewish history, when the pilgrims reached the River Jordan on their way to the Promised Land, their leader Joshua asked the people to each carry a stone across where God had parted the waters and place the stones as a monument on the other side as a sign of their passing, and so that "when your children ask what the stones mean, you can tell them the story."

Christina Brown wins second Fair aggregate

Christina Brown made it two wins in a row as she collected her second Elk Point Agricultural Fair Grand Aggregate award in as many years Saturday evening. This came on top of wins in three fair sections, and a special award for having the most entries in the fair.

The Grand Aggregate plaque was sponsored by CJ Petroleum, and the cash award by Norcen Energy Resources.

GRAND AGGREGATE WINNER - Christina Brown (left) accepts the challenge trophy and CJ Petroleum plaque from Fair Board Chairman Verona Lea Flanders.

Peter Andrishak sponsored the special award.

Mrs. Brown started out her list of wins with the Baking division, sponsored by Elk Point Co-Op and convened by Lyn Young, where there was a good increase in entries to 88 overall from last year's 70. She accepted her second win in the Knitting, Crochet and Weaving section, sponsored by Toronto Dominion Bank, where convenor Ellen Seward said entries were down slightly this year. Her third win came in the Seniors section convened by Diane Young, which had its usual good variety of well-executed entries vying for the prize donated by Irene Magnusson.

Runner-up for the Grand Aggregate and receiving an award from Pan Canadian Petroleum, was Lois Yaremkevich, who also won the section award in Canning, where she is the convenor. The Empress Restaurant sponsors the Canning prize. Mrs. Yaremkevich said entries were down considerably in that section this year, from 203 in 1994 to 136 items entered by nine people this year.

Second runner-up, for the Golden Loaf award, was Norma Berg, who won two section awards this year, in Flowers, convened by Ruth Vogel and sponsored by Elk Point and District Agricultural Society, and in Fresh Fruit, convened by Cecile Sadowinsky and sponsored by Woody's Trophy and Gifts. Entries were down in the Flowers this year, probably due to damage during the past week's rain and wind storms, but were up in the Fresh Fruit section.

Entries in the Vegetables section were also up, despite the weather, and presented a real challenge for the judge, according to convenor Katharine Shymkiw. Lyn Young was the winner of the Phil's Hardware award, with Gisele Pederson as runner-up.

Although the weather could not affect them much, entries in the House Plants section, convened by Maryann Kozicky, were also down slightly. Edith Mitchell was the winner of the Sunshine Bus Lines award for this section, with Norma Berg as runner-up.

The Arts, Crafts and Hobbies section had not only a new convenor this year, but a first-time winner. Gerry Lee has taken over management of this section from Lee Johnson, who has left Elk Point, and is looking forward to a much larger array of entries next year, since she heard numerous promises to enter at that time. Denise Smereka was the talented winner of the prize donated by Elk Point Insurance for that section.

Entries were up slightly in the Photography section sponsored by Home Town Grocers, reported Rilla Higgins, stand-

Cenotaph dedicated to those who have served in past and present wars

MacLellan said the new cenotaph is a similar resource for future generations, and asked those present if, should their children ask them what the stones mean, "would you be able to tell them?" about those who gave their lives "so that we could stand here in peace this morning."

Such memorials are a symbol necessary to help us remember, and to help us connect with the past as we take a critical look at the present and go on toward creative problem solving for the future, MacLellan said, calling the cenotaph "A mark, a symbol, a memory."

Member of Parliament Deborah Grey said that "we, as Canadians, must never forget" those who fought for our freedom. "We under 50 have no vivid memory of the horrors of war, but it moves me every time I think of those who gave so much. The Gulf War brought it starkly home to me, as I saw our troops from Cold Lake go and felt the fear that they might not come back. I really don't know if I would be willing to say to my husband, 'Go, Lou, they need you,' if there were another war. I am so thankful that all those others had the courage to let their loved ones go. Thank you from my generation to those who served then, and who serve now."

MLA Paul Langevin brought greetings from Premier Klein and the Province, and commended the Legion for having "the foresight and determination to build this memorial." He praised the site between the RCMP monument and the Seniors Recreation Centre as being visible to all those who come to Elk Point. He was pleased to see the support from other Legion branches, from the RCMP and from the armed forces for the occasion, and said "It shows we are ready to stand together. Together we can fight for our unity, and for this country." He presented a plaque to Legion President Louis Verhagen, while Wild Rose Foundation representative Larry Langager presented Verhagen with a replica of the $7000 grant cheque. Langevin also made a belated presentation of a plaque honoring Sid Holthe as "A Great Albertan."

Langager brought greetings from the Honorable Shirley McLellan, Minister responsible for the Wild Rose Foundation, which gives financial assistance to volunteer community organizations using funds from Alberta Lotteries. Langager felt it was fitting that money coming "from Albertans risking their dollars" should be used to commemorate those who risked and gave their lives for this province and this country.

Ray Danyluk represented the County of St. Paul, and thanked and congratulated the Legion and the numerous volunteers for making the cenotaph possible. "Today's children do not appreciate or remember [the wars] and this will go a long way in helping us to explain about them."

Mayor Ed Buck thanked everyone on behalf of the community, and gave special thanks to Verhagen, "to the proverbial Sid Holthe" and to the rest of the Legion members. "This monument can only represent our striving for peace and good will. It is unfortunate, sometimes, that we have to fight for these freedoms."

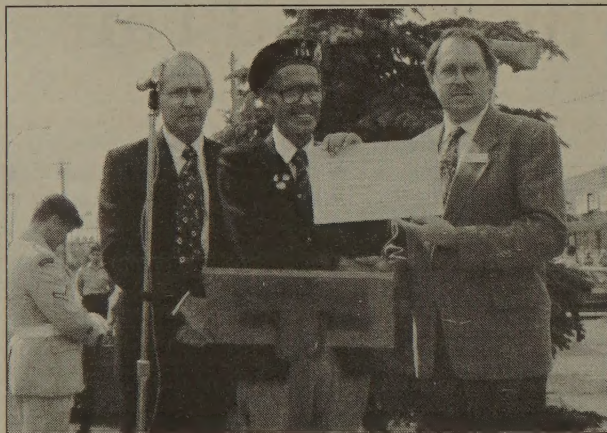

Legion President Verhagen said the monument "stands for the efforts of all veterans past, present and yet to come, who fought and will fight for our freedom. We are entitled to disagree, even with the government, and to speak our minds. The cenotaph honors all those responsible for giving us this right."

Legion members Tom McLennan and Jean Russell officiated in the unveiling of the cenotaph, which was followed by a prayer of dedication from Chaplain MacLellan, who asked God to "help us not to forget."

The 4 Wing, Cold Lake bugler then sounded the Last Post. The Cold Lek Pipe Band followed with "Amazing Grace" and "Lament" and Chaplain MacLellan recited the Act of Remembrance. Following two minutes of silence, the bugler broke the quiet with Reveille, followed by a "Feu de Joie" provided by representatives of Wainwright and Cold Lake bases.

Wreaths were laid by MP Grey, MLA Langevin, Langager, Danyluk, Mayor Buck, representatives of the RCMP, Canadian Forces, Royal Canadian Legion Command and Auxiliary, the Elk Point and St. Paul Legion branches.

Sid Holthe thanked a long list of contributors who donated toward the project, and added special thanks to Legion President Verhagen for his unceasing work on its behalf. Zone Commander Ron Lundell, who acted as MC for the ceremony, added his thanks and led the group in God Save The Queen before everyone adjourned to the Seniors Centre for lunch and refreshments.

Statue delayed

SOLDIER IN MINIATURE - the bronze model of the final statue which will grace the new cenotaph in memory of those who served their country in the wars.

A delay in receipt of the plans for the six foot statue of a Legion member remembering his comrades resulted in a slight change in the dedication of Elk Point's new cenotaph yesterday.

Instead of the large ornamental concrete figure, the ceremony included a 10 inch bronze marquette, a three-dimensional model of the statue itself.

Herman Poulin, maker of the statue, expressed sincere regret to Elk Point Royal Canadian Legion members last week over his inability to have the work completed by August 14. The delay was caused by the incompleteness of duplicating and enlarging the 3-dimensional pentograph marquette to the full size figure. The plans, which are coming from the United States, have not been as speedy as anticipated.

Poulin used Legion member Joe Moneta as his model. Moneta posed for well over an hour for the statue.

Completion of the statue will be in about six weeks.

ing in for convenor Lillian Demchuk. The winner was Irene Lindquist.

Talent obviously runs in the Lindquist family. Both winners of the Sewing section sponsored by Capitol Drugs also bear that name, with mom Cheri winning the adult award and daughter Kirsty the junior award. The section is chaired by Gloria Zarowny.

The Junior Fair sponsored by John and Gladys Drobot was one of the best sections this year, with entries more than double last year's, according to convenor Gisele Pederson. The winner of the section was Jennifer Flanders, who also won the Creative Writing section sponsored by the Elk Point Review and convened by Vicki Brooker. Entries in Creative Writing continued to slide in numbers, and all but three were from junior entrants, so this section may be combined with the Junior Fair next year.

The truly agricultural component of the Fair is the Grains and Hay, which also had a decline in entries, convenor Glenn Flanders said. His son Brett took home the honors in that section, with a prize from Terry Wozniak Bulk Sales. A sheaf of "mystery" grain was determined to be flax, with Carol Lee winning a draw for those who named it correctly.

A draw was made from the names of all entrants for a special prize donated by Alf Fakeley, with the winner being Glenda Mahe.

Fair Board Chairman Verona

Lea Flanders declared the fair a success, with a hundred more entries than last year and a number of new entrants. She thanked all the volunteers who helped with numerous aspects of the event, from hauling in equipment to working in the kitchen and at the door, and added hearty thanks to all the prize donors and to the Pioneer Circle seniors for the use of the hall.

Tourist numbers down from '94

By Sherry Pelech

Tourist Information Clerk

We have just been going over the very depressing tourism statistics for 1995. This year our numbers are down by about half. Although we had an active start to the year, with numbers up slightly from last year half way through June, as the summer season went on, numbers dropped off at an alarming rate. It seems that people just aren't travelling this year. For instance, other years we are generally out of BC information by the middle of July and are hard-pressed to try and get more in by the end of the season. This year, in the middle of August we still have lots of BC maps and Accommodation Guides.

Surprisingly, when we contacted the ever-helpful park people at Whitney Lakes Provincial Park, they told us, while they didn't have specific statistics, that numbers were up about 30 percent from last year. It seems that word about the beautiful lakes and superior campgrounds in the parks is getting around. The Kehewin Lake campground, however, is dependent on how well the fish are biting, so it is no surprise that for the last three weeks there have been fewer campers (Brian Tobin, where are you?)

A quick check with the local motels tells us that their numbers are basically like last year. One motel even reports having large numbers of Americans, something we have seen very few of this year. (In fact, we have only had Americans here at the TIC twice - once way back at the beginning of June, we had someone from California, and this last Saturday there were people from Idaho.) Many of the Americans the motel had were soldiers who were at the Canadian Forces Base Cold Lake for Operation Maple Flag. We are told that despite the distance from Cold Lake, many of the soldiers stay in Elk Point because they like Elk Point and have already booked their rooms for next year's exercises.

Out at Fort George /Buckingham House Interpretive Centre, they tell us that their numbers are down a little from last year, but only about 3.5 percent. They are getting some Americans, lots of local people who bring in out-of-town visitors, and campers from the Whitney Lakes Parks.

So, what's wrong with us here at the TIC (Tourist Information Centre)? Why are our numbers down by 50 percent? Part of it is because we are open only five days a week instead of seven like we were last year. And part of it could be because few local people travelled out of the area for their holidays, and so they didn't come to us for BC or Saskatchewan or Calgary or mountain resort information. Or maybe there just wasn't that many people who needed to be told where to go and how to get there.

Wherever the tourists have gone this year, we are confident they will be back next year. We still have a lot to offer. Our attractions are still attractive, our resources still resourceful and our history still historic. And we still have parks, lakes, beaches, fish (well, some), grass, plants, trees (well, some), birds, beasts, flowers, facilities and ample amenities.

GREAT MORNING FOR A PARADE - A scarlet coated RCMP officer and the kilted Cold Lake Pipe Band led a parade of Legion members, armed forces personnel, dignitaries and service club members around a lengthy route prior to the Cenotaph dedication ceremonies.

Family Matters

Brandnameitis a common issue

By Dr. Arnold Rincover

Child Behavioral Psychologist

Kricketts, Osh Kosh B'Gosh, Gap Kids and Buster Brown have all become household names. The desire to have this brand-name clothing is becoming a common issue for young children. Many parents feel guilty or angry because they cannot or do not want to provide these things for their children.

From as young as four or five years old, children perform as consumers. They want the newest brand-name sweatshirts, t-shirts, jeans, hats, headbands and running shoes. They have a hard time understanding why they should have to do without them when a child down the street has that same item. It can be frustrating as a parent not wanting your child to be left out, but at the same time trying to teach them that they cannot have everything. A parent should not feel they have failed in providing for their child by denying them brand-name items.

Explaining there is a limited amount of money and other people may need things at the same time is the first step to ensuring your child does not become greedy for brand-name items. Children must learn to look at things in perspective. They need to be reminded about what is important in life. Brand-name clothing should rank low on their list of priorities and values.

Do not expect children to understand and accept this explanation the first time. It will take some time to teach them the realities of life. However, this explanation will lay a foundation for the next time a similar situation arises.

At about 8 or 9 years old, children begin to empathize and look at things from another person's point of view. Understanding that many children have much less will make them appreciate what they have. Another way of teaching children the value of items is to have them give up something of equal value in exchange for the new item. A parent may also want to encourage the child to wait for a special occasion, such as a birthday, to receive the item. Children can be encouraged to earn these "extras" on their own. Mowing the lawn, pulling weeds, delivering newspapers, improving school work or doing extra chores are good ways children can earn money.

Even if you can afford to give your child every brand-name piece of clothing, it is better not to. This is a good opportunity to teach them that they cannot have everything they want. Denying your child brand-name clothes does not mean you love them less. It means you love them enough to teach them responsibility, maturity and what is really

12th ANNUAL Elk Point OILMEN'S GOLF TOURNAMENT

August 18, 19 & 20, 1995

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Doug Golledge, Ted Yarmuch, Dan Povaschuk and Dave Zacharuk — thank these gentlemen for volunteering their time to bring you another super Elk Point Oilmen's Association Golf Tournament.

Welcome, Oilmen, enjoy the golf and have fun at all the weekend activities. I am sorry I am unable to attend this year, having other commitments, however if you look southwest to Kananaskis, you can see me waving.

The elusive Hole-In-One is still waiting for a sharpshooter to bag it. Give it all you got and remember to respect your playing partners.

Good luck, everyone!

Teamwork does it at Northeast Regional 4-H Light Horse Show

Young horse enthusiasts from across the Northeast 4-H Region gathered in St. Paul's roomy Ag Corral on Sunday, August 13 for a day of competition in a variety of riding events, conformation judging and other activities.

The Regional 4-H Light Horse Show came on the heels of a week of studying the finer points of horsemanship at the Northeast Regional 4-H Light Horse Camp at Lakeland College, Vermilion, where they received four days of instruction.

Twenty eight riders took part in the show, and were divided into seven teams of four. All participants competed in showmanship, grooming, conformation judging, English and Western Equitation, and then had the option of taking part in English and Western Pleasure classes, Trail, Reining, and Western Riding Pattern.

For each class, the first place rider received 7 points, the second 6 points, and on down to sixth, for 2 points, with one point given to each of the other competitors for participating in that class. The points were tallied up for each team's scores as the day progressed.

The afternoon wound up with some fun events not counted in the team scores, as the final results were being tabulated. Barrel racing and Pole Bending were timed for prize ribbons in both Junior and Senior categories, while a hilarious sack race and a toilet paper race which definitely required teamwork, were enjoyed just for fun.

When all the adding was done, Team Green was declared the winner, with an 111 point total contributed to by Leslie Roth, Jamie Schnurer, Rhea Dallaire and Candace Weder.

Second place went to Team Beige, with Amanda Ferris, Ashley Larson, Clinton Conway and Amy Rustad totalling 109 points. Third went to Team Blue: Naomi Carter, Danielle Bouchard, Lana Graham and Lisa Belland with 97 points.

Fourth were Dorry Begolka, Mandy Mavor, Amber Ferris and Danielle Noel of Team Pink with 89 points, while Team Yellow, Dawn Middaugh, Carmen Labrie, Kristina Rinas and Erin Krekoski were fifth by just one point at 88.

Sixth went to Team Red, Joanne Richer, Kari Rustead, Tennille Bureau and Ross Krekoski with 83 total points, while seventh went to Team White, Jeffrey Krekoski, Nikki Dery, Kyla Matthews and Sheri Engerdahl with 71 points.

Along with large rosette ribbons, each team took a turn at choosing from a table filled with a variety of horse-oriented prizes, from lead ropes and sacks of feed to sporty caps and belts, with something for every participant.

LOCAL SENIORS VERY PRODUCTIVE - The Seniors section at Elk Point Fair showed a wide array of talents.

What's news at the library?

Fun for summer readers on a trip Down Under

By Michele Ducek
Librarian

It was a trip Down Under in our READ AROUND THE WORLD summer reading program. We learned about different Australian animals, ate biscuits and cookies and made grass skirts using newspaper. On Thursday the kids tested their manners with It's a Spoon, Not a Shovel. If the results are anything to go by, kids today do know their manners, they sometimes forget to mind them. This week we're off to the movies with a video treat, and the final week will see us doing Europe.

We have received two delightful book/cassette kits for children. The first is The Meat Eaters Arrive by Suzan Reid and Linda Hendry. Life in the neighborhood will never be the same when the "Rex" family moves in next door to the "Brontos."

The second one is Follow the Moon by Sarah Weeks and Suzanne Duranceau. A young boy helps a newly hatched turtle reach the sea.

A pile of picture books have also arrived at the library:

The Bear by Raymond Briggs is the story of Tilly and a very big polar bear that visits her one night. Having a polar bear as a guest is more work than Tilly realizes.

In When Daddy Came to School by Julie Brillhart, a young boy gets a special treat when his father joins him at playschool for his third birthday.

Preston the Pig manages to avoid a hungry wolf in the comic story Suddenly by Colin McNaughton. I love this book.

Max and Ruby's Midas by Rosemary Wells has Ruby using the story of Midas to show Max that too much of a good thing is a bad thing.

Bernard Most wonders what it would be like if animals were like their names in Catbirds and Dogfish. You also learn a little about the real animals along the way.
